FARMS FOR SALE.

THE Subscriber, intending to return to the City, will offer at PUBLIC SALE, on Monday the 24th day of October next, on the premises,

A FARM,

Situate on the Colinton, Adams county, Pa. about 4 miles from Hanover, and 1 mile from the Chapel, containing 140 Acres of Limestone Land,

A desirable portion of which is in wood and meadow, a great part of the meadow manured, and well set in timothy last fall. In point of quality, health, beauty and convenience, there are none to surpass it. The house is the largest, handsomest and best in the settlement; the other improvements are all that are necessary, and seldom better. There is also a Mill seat of upwards of 15 feet fall; 20 feet may be obtained, but this stream, which never fails, is quite sufficient for the above fall; the digging of the race, &c. for which, will be but a small expense.— There can be no better situation for a mill, and the above fall will be warranted.

ALSO—At the same time and place,
A LOT OF CHESNUT
Timber-Land,
in York county, Pennsylv'a.

ALSO—AT PRIVATE SALE,

FIVE FARMS,

POETRY.

FROM THE BALTIMORE MINERVA.

STANZAS.

Taste not the sparkling wine,
When it is ruby bright; Press not the goblet to thy lip In all its fairy light.
For know, beneath its rosy glow, There dwells unseen the sting of woe.

They say it cheers the heart, Relieves the mind of woe; And gives a healthy vigor to The wan cheek's hectic glow—Aye, but the health upon its breath Is like the flush that heralds death.

Then dash the "wine-cup" by—Beware its tempting viles; Dis-ease and crime are lurking there, Beneath its artful smiles.
For every drop within the bowl Is death and ruin to the soul.

Ah! shun the sparkling wine, That tempts the soul to sin;
Dash from thy lip the poison'd bowl, For madness dwells within.
Yes, 'neath the bright and rosy wine, Life's canker worms recline.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A LEGEND OF THE NATCHEZ.

A young chief of some distinction was betrothed to an Indian girl.—A French officer had seen the beautiful Natchez, admired, and determined to possess her. An opportunity soon enabled him to press his dishonorable suit. The attempt was met as chastity should always encounter baseness, with scorn and contempt.

Baffled, but not defeated, pride and lawless passion urged on this infatuated man to the accomplishment of his designs, reckless to guilt, and blind to danger.

The hour had arrived which was appointed for the marriage of the warrior and his destined bride. In the simple and unostentatious ceremony which marked this primitive race, the immediate relatives had assembled to witness the pledge, and to mingle in the festivities of this joyous occasion, when a band of soldiers surrounded the peaceful assembly. Opposition was fruitless. The Indians entirely defenceless, and unsuspecting of danger, were lost in astonishment; and amidst grief and supplication, the bride was borne away.

Imagination can alone depict the sorrow, consternation and despair which agitated the soul of the unhappy husband. He persuaded, he entreated; his ingenious heart urged all that could be conceived, to operate on the humanity or excite the avarice of the heartless ravisher: but contumely and bitter derision were the only answer to his impassioned supplications. Then he threw himself in all his strength and terrible energies, among the bayonets of his enemies. Many sunk under his powerful arm; but numbers prevailed, and he was hurled back, discomfited and wounded to the earth.

Days and weeks passed away; but the vigilance of the savage never slumbered over the prospect of revenge.— He roamed about the encampment of the French, he employed every strata-gem that his wily ingenuity could suggest; but the apprehension of some desperate deed, induced more than ordinary precaution on the part of the French officer. The wary Indian, however, had noted the situation of the camp, marked the quarters of his victim, and matured his plans. He had secretly and cautiously prepared large quantities of combustible materials, consisting of dried cane, leaves, and brush-wood; these, saturated with the sap of the pitch pine, were carefully transferred by night to the vicinity of the encampment, at a point the most distant from the quarters of the devoted Frenchman. The place selected was just without the chain of sentinels, and in the midst of a thicket unfrequented by the soldiers.

To this magazine, on a dark and stormy night, he fired a train, which, burning slowly, enabled him to reach the stand of the sentinel nearest his enemy, before the conflagration became perceptible.—He threw himself at full length on the ground, he wound among the herbage, gliding with the silence and rapidity of the serpent. The unsuspecting soldier reached the extreme-ity of his post, and turned to retreat; his steps; the next instant his throat was in a grasp from which nothing mortal could extricate him. A silent plunge, and a heavy sigh went down upon the wind, and save its gusty man, no other sound could be distinguished.

The success of the stratagem was complete. The terrors of that tempestuous night, rendered visible by the brilliance of the widely spread fire, &c. inconceivably magnified by those unearthly sounds, struck dismay to every bosom. The sentinels fled their posts, the camp was thrown into confusion, and fearful forebodings and undefined fear sat on every countenance.

Enveloped in the watch coat of the unfortunate soldier, the Natchez chief now occupied the opening of the tent, where reposed the hated author of all his wrongs. Roused by the uproar which surrounded him, the Frenchman hastened to ascertain its cause; but the next instant explained the mystery—for he felt himself in the iron fold of him whom he had injured beyond the hope of mercy. A moment was sufficient to bind the victim, to fasten a sheathed knife firmly in his jaws, to enter the tent, and lead forth that once pure, but now violated, dishonored and forsaken girl. She had anticipated, & impatiently awaited the moment which could terminate her sorrows. Not a word was uttered, not a sound escaped; but in the confusion which prevailed, and amidst the gloom of the night, and the raging of the storm, bearing his foe in his arms, and followed by his wife, the triumphant savage sought the depths of the wilderness. He speedily passed beyond the limits of European adventure, and the sun rose upon this devoted party, where pursuit was impossible, or would have been hopeless.

He turned to her whom he yet tenderly loved, whose soul was yet un-spotted, but whose cruel destiny had involved them both in irredeemable dishonor. The exchange of a few hasty words, and a first and final embrace, were the preliminaries of this bloody drama. The chief then drew his knife from the sheath, still in the mouth of his prisoner, and presenting it to her, hid himself in the forest.

He soon returned: the faithful and beautiful Natchez had vindicated by her death the purity of her heart. The Indian then seizing the appalled object of his vengeance, prepared for the infliction of that punishment, which unprovoked aggression had suggested to the mind of a savage. Entreaties, prayers and imprecations, were alike unavailing; about the neck of his horror-stricken enemy, he bound the lifeless body of her, whom violence had brought to dishonor & untimely death.
Under the eye of God alone, in the glare of the meridian sun, and the deep gloom of midnight, through the mazes of the forest, and the dangers of the morass, day after day, in death-like silence, the Indian urged on his victim, until humanity sunk under congregated horrors. Hunger, keen and enduring, gnawed his vitals, and presented but death, or an alternative more revolting and fearful. Nature asserted her dominion, and he repressed the awful approaches of dissolution, by tearing the mangled burden which hung festering on his bosom. Then thirst, like a devouring fire, consumed his blood, and despair and frenzy closed the scene.

A new play, called the "Lion of the West," is now being performed to the East, and attracts crowded houses.— The principal character in this production, Nimrod Wildfire, is, to use his own language, a scranner! Some idea of his peculiarities may be formed from the following slight sketch which he gives of an affair between himself and a raftsmen:—

"I was ridin' along the Mississippi in my wagon, when I came across a feller floating down stream, settin' in the stern of his boat fast asleep! Well, I hadn't had a fight for ten days—felt as tho' I should have to kiver myself up in a salt-barrel to keep— so wolly about the head and shoulders. So, says I, 'hullo stranger! if you don't take care, your boat will run away with you!' So he looked up at me slantendier, and I looked down on him slantendier; he took out a chor of tobacco, and says he, 'I don't value you tantamount to that!' and then the varmint flapped his wings and crowed like a cock. I ris up, shook my mane, crooked my neck, and weighed like a horse. He ran his boat plump head foremost ashore. I stopped my wagon and sot my triggers.—'Mister,' said he, 'I can wip my weight in wild cats and ride straight through a crab-apple orchard on a flash of lightnin'.' Clear meat-axe disposition—the best man, if I an't, I wish I may be tetotatiously exhausted!"

The two belligerents join issue, and the Colonel goes on to say—

"He was a pretty severe colt, but no part of a pishum to such a feller as me. I put it to him, mighty droll—in ten minutes he yelled, enough! and swore I was a ripstayer! Says I, 'An't I the yellin' flower of the forest? and I'm all brimstone but the head, and that's aqua fortis!' Says he, 'Stranger, you're a beauty, and if I only know your name, I'd vote for you next election.' Says I, 'My name is Nimrod Wildfire—holl horse, half alligator, and a touch of the earthquake—that's got the prettiest sister, fastest horse, and ugliest dog in the district, and can out-jump, out-jump, throw down, drag out, and whip any man in all Kaintuck.'"

While you say that the religion of your neighbor is like a garment that sits loosely upon him, be careful that your own is not like a glove that fits either head; those who have the least piety themselves are not unfrequently the most censorious towards others.

The editor of the Bedford Gazette, has been amusing himself and his readers, by collecting together from various papers, a number of amusing instances of typographical errors. The following are worth copying:

An editor at the South offers a premium of $100 for the best original tail.— He probably wishes to pass for a monkey.

A New-York gentleman advertises a louse to let, possession to be given immediately.

A paper in this town advertises patient ploughs. Thomson speaks of the patient ox, but we suppose the epithet has travelled down to the chain and entered the plough.

The same paper advertises for a vessel of 60 tons, to go Quincy for a loud-stone. After her return New Bedford will be the centre of attraction.

Another paper, speaking of the riot in Providence, says the people of that town will raise more houses of ill fame.

Valuable Cows.—At the recent cattle show and Farmer's Fair, in Andover, (Mass.) two cows were exhibited, one of which, with feed from a common pasture, gave from the 2d of May to the 27th of September 586 gallons of superior milk, being an average produce of four gallons per day. The other gave in the month of June 17 quarts a day; there was made from her milk in one month, fifty pounds of good butter.

It may not be generally known, that the tad-pole acts the same part with fish, that ants do with birds; and that through the agency of this little reptile, perfect skeletons, even of the smallest fishes, may be obtained. To produce this, it is but necessary to suspend the fish by threads attached to the head and tail, in a horizontal position, in a jar of water such as is found in a pond, and change it often till the tad-poles have finished their work. Two or three tad-poles will perfectly dissect a fish in twenty-four hours.

What is Aristocracy.—In reply to the question of an ultra, what is aristocracy? Gen. Foy, a distinguished orator in the French Chambers, gave the following definition: 'I can tell you what it is,' said he, 'aristocracy of the 19th century, is the coalition, the league of those who would consume without working; know every thing without learning any thing; carry away all the honors without deserving them; and occupy all the places of government without being capable of filling them.'

On Pulpit Ostentation.—How little must the presence of God be felt in that place where the high functions of the pulpit are degraded into a stipulated exchange of entertainment on the one side, and of admiration on the other; and surely, it were a sight to make angels weep, when a weak and vaporing mortal, surrounded by his fellow sinners, and hastening to the grave and the judgment along with them, finds it a dearer object to his bosom, to regale his hearers by the exhibition of himself, than to do in plain earnest the work of his Master, and urge on the business of repentance and of faith by the impressive simplicities of the gospel.—Dr. Chalmers.

Definition of a Drunkard.—A pious divine of the old school says:

"A drunkard is the annoyance of modesty, the trouble of civility, the caterpillar of industry, the tunnel of wealth, the ale-house benefactor, the constable's trouble, the woe of his wife, the scoff of his neighbor, his own shame, a walking swill-tub, the picture of a beast, and the monster of a man."

Experience gradually teaches us, that the greater part of what we look upon as misfortunes, arises from our endeavoring to hasten, to change, or to constrain the natural course of events. It would almost seem as if there were a secret chain of connexions, of cause and effect, which would conduct us naturally and necessarily to the object of our desires, if the restless character of our minds did not from time to time lead us astray.

Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap.

ADAMS SENTINEL.
Gettysburg, Oct. 18.

The Election.—By the official returns of the Election in this County, as published above, it will be perceived, that Mr. Marshall and Mr. Picking are elected to the Legislature; Mr. Gubernator, Commissioner; Mr. McKesson, Auditor; and Mr. Thompson, Director of the Poor.

Mr. Smyser, of York, is elected to the Senate from this District. His majority in York county over Mr. Riley is, we learn, about 570.

The following are all the returns of the Election in other counties we have yet received:

We expect to be able to give a complete list next week.

Mr. Fullerton (Nat. Rep.) is elected to the State Senate from Franklin; Mr. Hays. (A. M.) from Allegheny; Mr. Hassinger, (Jackson) from Philadelphia.

DEVORAH PHILIPS, the woman respecting whom information was requested, by her husband, who had been imprisoned on suspicion of having killed her, has returned to this part of the country. Philips, however, had been previously discharged, sufficient evidence not having been produced to justify his detention.

Foreign News.—An arrival at New-York brings London dates of the 31st Aug. The news from Poland is of an afflicting character. From them, it appears, that the Russians had nearly surrounded Warsaw; and that that capital was under the control of a mob, who had removed some of the officers of the government, and substituted others of their own choosing. This intelligence, however, comes through a channel which has frequently disseminated false reports—we hope, therefore, it may prove incorrect.

The Hon. JOHN RANDOLPH, our late Minister to Russia, arrived at New-York on Wednesday last, in the ship Hannibal.

The Hon. JAMES BUCHANAN, of Lancaster, has been appointed Minister to Russia. It is his intention to embark for Europe immediately.

Chief Justice MARSHALL has been undergoing the critical operation of Lithotomy by Dr. Physic, of Philadelphia, and it has terminated with complete success. We hope to see his valuable life extended for many years.

ent—as we deem it the policy and interest of the American Government.

Resolved, That we disapprove of the object and principles of the Anti-Tariff Convention lately held in Philadelphia.

Resolved, That the following persons be appointed Delegates to the contemplated Convention to be held in the City of New-York, on the 26th inst. viz: James Wilson, Esq. Hon. Daniel Sheffer, Daniel M. Smyser, Esq. John B. Clark, Esq. Ezra Blythe, Esq. James M'Sherry, Esq. David Middlecott, Esq. Michael Sagle, Esq. Col. Geo. Himes, and Capt James Clark.

Resolved, That these proceedings be signed by the Chairman and Secretary, and published in all the papers of the borough.

JAMES WILSON, Chairman.
J. B. McPHERSON, Secretary.

Outrages on Humanity.—A letter from a young gentleman in Virginia to his parents in New-Hampshire, published in the Haverhill Post, details some of the barbarities practised on the negroes, who, in the late insurrection, were taken prisoners by the whites—They are such as should make their authors blush to be named in a civilized and christian country. Some of the blacks were put to death by torture. In one instance the prisoner was burnt with red-hot irons—had his ears and nose cut off—his ham-strings cut—was stabbed—and finally beheaded!

A gentleman travelling in Virginia at the time of the insurrection, thus writes to the editor of the Boston Christian Herald: "In riding in the stage from Richmond to Fredericksburg, a passenger by the name of Smith, direct from the seat of the insurrection, stated that the blacks who were taken prisoners were killed in the most barbarous manner. Their noses and ears were cut off, the flesh of their cheeks cut out, their jaws broken asunder, and then set up as a mark to shoot at!"

It is dangerous for a white man even to express an opinion among whites, in favor of the abstract right of the slaves to freedom. An account of a most wanton and brutal outrage on a Mr. Robinson, now, or lately, in this city, is given in the Evening Sentinel. He was at Petersburg, Va. and in conversation on the subject of slavery, maintained that the blacks as men, were entitled to their freedom and ought to be emancipated. He was dragged in broad day from his boarding house, carried out of town, stripped, tied to a tree, nearly scourged to death, the authorities of Petersburg having refused to interfere for his protection. Such is law and justice where slavery prevails! It will be said in excuse, that the whites were in a state of great excitement and alarm. But does this justify deliberate cruelty or wanton outrage? Never.—New-York Constellation.

"At the bank of England," says a paragraph in the Lady's Magazine, for December, 1736, "the sum of $471,000 was transferred by Mr. Van Otten, on account of the Landgrave of Hesse, soldiers lost in the American war, at thirty pounds a man." According to this calculation, the number of Hessians lost in the said war was 15,700.

Supreme Court of the United States.—This is an ultimate tribunal. Its decisions are final. It utters opinions and they become parts and portions of the Law of the Land. And yet the Judges are but men, actuated by like passions swayed by similar considerations, capable of being moulded by the same transient dispositions as ourselves. Of what immense importance, then, is it to the whole country, that every inducement to decide unrighteously, unlawfully and contrary to their intelligence, should be swept away from their presence, and that nothing should be left for the eyes of their ambition to batten on, but the modest blazonry of the good citizen, who having performed his duty here, according to the dictates of his conscience, and the promptings of his judgment, has nothing to fear hereafter.

A justice, seated on the bench of the Supreme Court of any state, and more especially that of the United States, should be dead to the excitation of all private prejudice—all partiality in rivalry. There is nothing so totally at variance with the character of the judicial office—so completely opposed to the spirit of our republican constitution—nothing so unchristian—nothing so offensive to the feelings of the people as to see a man, whose duty it is to administer justice, and to be a party to the oppression of his fellow-men.

Resolved, That these proceedings be signed by the Chairman and Secretary and published.

ROBT. M. HUTCHINSON, Chairman.
J. SWENNEY, Sec'y.

Tariff Meeting.

A meeting of Citizens of Adams county, friendly to the protection of American Industry was held at the Court-house in Gettysburg, on Saturday the 15th October, next. James Wilson, Esq. was called to the Chair, and J. B. McPHERSON appointed Secretary.

On motion of A. G. Miller, Esq. a resolution was passed, expressing the sense of the community on the subject of the tariff.

A. G. Miller, Esq. called J. B. McPHERSON, Esq. to the Chair, and J. B. McPHERSON, Esq. read the following Resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this meeting approve of the protection of the tariff, and that the same be published in all the papers of the borough.

Resolved, That we approve of the protecting duties, as they exist at present.

Judiciary System.

The following Petition has been handed in, with a request to give it place, that the public opinion may be had relative to the matter:

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The petition of the subscribers, respectfully represents,

That the evils arising out of the present organization of the judiciary system of the state, are daily increasing, & that your petitioners, in common with their fellow citizens, are suffering in their rights and property, from the operation of causes that might easily be removed; they therefore add their earnest solicitations, to the oft repeated recommendations from successive governors of the state, for some legislative improvement.

It is supposed that a reference to the evils, will clearly demonstrate the appropriate remedy.

Experience abundantly shows, that the supreme court under the present arrangement, cannot perform the duties assigned to it. No combination of skill and industry in the judges, can dispose of the enormous accumulation of business pressing upon that court.

The judges are required to hold in Philadelphia a court of oyer and terminer, a court of nisi prius, and a court of error, which with the greatest skill and unremitting industry, must occupy upwards of twenty weeks in every year. They are required to hold four regular terms annually in the country, with occasionally an adjourned term in Lancaster, occupying sixteen weeks, independent of the time required for travelling to and from the different districts, and in addition to this, they are required to hold annually circuit courts in the several counties, which cannot occupy less than eight weeks. The average mileage travelled yearly by each judge, is not less than fifteen hundred miles, which must require, in the rapidity of stage conveyance, a period of not less than three or four weeks, leaving in the year a remnant of four or five weeks for relaxation, and to be spent with their families. With the present arrangement in Philadelphia, we are not inclined to interfere. The number of cases in the four country districts, falls but little short of four hundred per annum, and they are annually increasing; allowing five days in the week for constant labor on the bench, the number of causes to be disposed of, will average about five a day. The cases are made up of appeals from the orphans and Registers courts; from the decrees of the common pleas in the appropriation of money; in writs of error; and they have besides, the sole jurisdiction in cases of mandamus, and writs of quo warranto; and concurrent jurisdiction in cases of trust, naturalization, divorce, habeas corpus, &c. If we consider, that most of the cases are involved with numerous and complicated facts; that they are to be discussed and examined; that the law is to be investigated; and that an opinion is to be written and filed of record, not only in every case, but upon every point arising in the case, it will be abundantly clear, that the services required cannot be performed.

There is an absolute impossibility, that they can be rightly done in the time allowed. It is treating the judges unfairly, and disregarding the best interests of the community, to require of a court which is to settle the laws in the last resort, an amount of labor, which cuts off all opportunity of study and research. The public is lavish enough in its censures, if the whole work is not done, and done in the most perfect manner. It is as unjust, therefore, as it is injurious, to heap upon the judges, a burden which we know they cannot sustain; and then to censure them for the non-performance: the objection presses as strongly against the manner the judges are compelled to hurry through the business, as the inconvenience of having in Pittsburgh, Lancaster and Philadelphia, a delay of two or three years before a case can be reached.

The judges in the last resort, should be allowed time to proceed deliberately; to read and investigate; and time carefully to commit their opinions to writing, after the fullest examination; this is due to the reputation of the judges, and the character of the state. If this opportunity is not afforded them, let them not be censured, if their decisions shall not always be found to be consistent with each other; or if too numerous occasions occur, in which some of the judges dissent from the opinion of the majority, and thus render the law uncertain. If a case be held under advisement, or time be asked to draw up a long and difficult opinion, where is the time for advisement, or to write deliberately an opinion? Not one day, or hour, can be spared, without borrowing from another period, that which should be equally devoted to other and equally pressing inquiries. Even if the public demand of them the employment still the objection of a want of reasonable time is not removed. Less can be done under an over press of labor, than when time is allowed for reasonable relaxation, for the mind becomes tortured by constant employment, and unfit for active exertion, and the state loses rather than gains, by demanding too much.

The remedy we would suggest, is in the first place, to lessen the labors in the supreme court.

This may be done in a two-fold way. 1. By releasing the judges from the duty of holding the circuit courts. 2. By reducing the amount of business in bank, by referring a portion of it to another tribunal.

Let the courts of common pleas, orphans' courts, &c. remain as they are, and the circuit courts be held by judges appointed for that particular purpose. And to effect the further object, let two contiguous president judges of the common pleas, with one of the circuit judges, hold a court of appeals, twice a year at some central point, within each judiciary district, for reviewing the opinions of the courts of common pleas within such district, as well as of the circuit courts, in all cases under a certain amount, say $300; and let their decisions be final, unless in particular cases, when upon a special allocatur, they may be taken to the supreme court by writ of error.

Different courts thus graduated, would seem not only to avoid the difficulties suggested, but would add new facilities for the speedy and certain administration of justice, far beyond the means furnished under the present system.

The duty of holding circuit courts being taken from the supreme judges, and the number of writs of error, appeals, &c. being diminished in the manner suggested, would still leave the supreme court an abundant supply of business, but no more than could be done, by a due application of skill and industry. Such a court, so organized, would afford surer means than any other, of rendering public satisfaction.

The circuit courts, so constructed, would materially add to the safe and speedy administration of justice, not only in the relief afforded to the supreme court, but as it regards the business of the courts of common pleas and orphans' courts, &c. With five judges, a circuit court could be held twice a year in every county, the term of which might continue one or two weeks as business should require, and provisions could be made for transmitting causes from the common pleas, orphans' courts, registers courts, &c. under such regulations, as would properly divide the business between the county, and the circuit courts. The circuit judges would alternate in the different counties, so that the same one would not preside in the same county twice in succession. Thus a choice would be furnished to suitors, that would do away all personal objections to judges, a spirit of emulation would be excited, a novelty would be preserved, an energy be imparted, and additional means be furnished in the joint labors of the county and circuit courts, that would meet all the demands of public justice. There are fifty counties in the State. Twenty-five of these would probably require but one term of the circuit court in a year. In the other twenty five counties two terms would be required, and in some of them, two or more weeks at a term. The first twenty five weeks could be held by the five judges, in five weeks: including travelling, say two months. There would then remain ten months. Two terms in the other twenty-five counties, with travelling, extra terms, &c. would consume four months. There would still be six months remaining. Cases in error under $300, would embrace about one-half the number of writs of error and appeals in the different counties, now carried to the supreme court. Thus ample time would be afforded for the circuit judges, to hold one or two terms every year, in every county, to aid the courts of common pleas, orphans and registers courts, in the transaction of their business, and also, for holding with two of the president judges, a court of review in each judiciary district, twice in every year.

It is of essential importance, that an opportunity should be speedily had for reviewing, and correcting errors, which may accrue in the hurry of a jury trial, or in the sudden investigation of a matter tried for the first time, before the orphans and registers courts; for this purpose, we suggest the propriety of a court of appeals being held, twice a year within each judiciary district, by one of the circuit court judges, aided by two of the president judges of the common pleas. To this court, all cases where the sum in controversy does not exceed $300 dollars, could be taken in the manner in which appeals are now had from the circuit to the supreme court. This plan, while it would add great facilities in the despatch of business, seems to be without objection. The circuit judges would travel annually over the state; they would be associated alternately with all the president judges in the transaction of business; they would in this way, produce uniformity of practice in the inferior courts, and there would be no danger of rendering the law uncertain by a difference of decisions in the different courts of appeal. For it is contemplated, that in cases of great difficulty, or of importance, or where the decisions of the supreme court may have been overlooked or disregarded, that on a special allocatur by the supreme court, the case may be taken up to that tribunal for final adjudication. So that the supreme court would still, in matters of difficulty, constitute the court in the last resort. Cases of this kind would be few, and having been explored in the court of appeals, they would go up to the supreme court in an abstract form, and would require but little time for their final disposition. It appears to your petitioners, that the scheme now recommended partakes more of uniformity in design, and practicality in execution; than any one that has come under their observation. It will avoid the evils of the present system, and add new facilities, never heretofore enjoyed. Trial by jury will be advanced in all the counties, as well as the transaction of the ordinary business in the county courts, by an increased number of tribunals. Partialities, predilections, and peculiarities, will be neutralized, by a choice of tribunals afforded to suitors. Despatch will be secured by the ready means of trial afforded; uniformity and certainty will be established, by mingling the services of the circuit judges with those of the president judges of the common pleas, and by enabling the supreme court, as the court in the last resort, to settle the law upon mature reflection. Perhaps among the most beneficial results, will be the opportunity afforded for rehearing cases adjudged in the orphans and registers courts. Proceedings in these tribunals have become exceedingly important, and there is no adequate remedy in the present tedious process of appeals, from the circuit courts, to the supreme court. There is a lamentable want of time and facilities to secure a deliberate and thorough investigation, and a destructive delay in pursuing the remedy.

The expense of the proposed plan is, perhaps, the only objection to it. But on this score, the scheme is less exceptionable, than any one heretofore offered for consideration. By withdrawing from the supreme court so much of its business, and allowing a reasonable time for investigation, and deliberation, it might perhaps be reduced to its former condition, when it consisted of but three judges. For its strength does not consist in numbers, but in its constitution, and the manner of conducting business. In that case, only three judges, in addition to the present number, would be required. But if five be deemed necessary, the expense would be trifling, compared with the object to be attained. Your petitioners firmly believe, that there is more money wasted in unprofitable litigation in Pennsylvania in one year, and which might be prevented, than would under the system suggested, defray the increased expense for ten years. But while the physical abilities of the state are being improved, at the annual expense of millions, is the moral and civil condition of the community to be disregarded, because the expense would be a few thousands?

Your petitioners pray, that the subject may be taken into consideration, and such relief afforded as may be deemed expedient.

SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCE.

Since the death of the Rev. Mr. Foster, formerly of the Parish Church in Lyttleton (Miss) the inhabitants of that town have unhappily been divided in their religious opinions. Accusations and recriminations have been bandied about, and polemical controversies have fearfully interrupted the harmony of that beautiful village. Within a few months, these dissensions have increased, and each sect claiming the exclusive right of appointing a Pastor, it was finally agreed after much wrangling, to determine this important point by a vote of the town. Accordingly a town meeting was appointed to be held on Wednesday last for this purpose; and each individual felt as if the honor and happiness, temporal and eternal, of the sect to which he belonged was at stake, and waited with fear mingled with hope and impatience for the appointed day. On Tuesday the day preceding the one appointed for the town meeting, the meeting house was struck by lightning and totally consumed. — Phil. Gaz.

The Raleigh Register of Thursday says:—We learn from authentic sources, that the plot of a meditated insurrection has been discovered amongst the slaves engaged in the Gold Mines of Rutherford and Burke. Several arrests have taken place in consequence, but no disturbances are now apprehended. There has been great excitement in that quarter, and many exaggerated statements have got abroad as to the extent of the plot, the design, and number of the insurgents, &c. A very serious plot has also been detected in Richmond county. We learn that there are about twenty negroes in the jail of that county, and that a number of iron spears have been found, manufactured for the purpose of carrying their diabolical plans into operation. The report of the Anson plot is, we believe, without foundation.

The U. S. Revenue.—We understand from Washington that the U States' Revenue for the present year will exceed the estimates by eight millions of dollars. It was estimated at $22,000,000—it will reach nearly $30,000,000. — N. Y. Eng.

The Siamese twins were lately exhibited in Exeter, Massachusetts. The Boston Patriot tells a story of a physician of that town who being desirous to ascertain for himself whether the two boys "in corporal sunderance" were identical or separate, inquired of Chang if he should stick a pin in his shoulder what would be the effect on his brother. "If you stick a pin into me," retorted Chang quickly, "my brother Eng might knock you down."

WOOD-SAWING.

Mahton Tumlin,

RETURNS his sincere thanks to the Citizens of Gettysburg, for the steady support he has received in his business of WOOD-SAWING;—and informs them, that he intends to pursue it during the coming Fall and Winter; and requests of them their patronage. They all know the affliction with which he has been visited; and an appeal to an enlightened and generous Public was never yet made in vain.

Gettysburg, Oct. 4.

TO THE PUBLIC.

IN the "Star" of 27th Sept 1831, I observed a charge in the Borough Accounts, "Outstanding Tax in the hands of J. Sanders $41 50." The charge is unfounded and untrue. The facts are these:—In 1827, there was a voluntary subscription in the Borough, for the purpose of assisting in the construction of a Town Clock, to the amount of $101— which sum you will also see in that account. The subscription was placed in my hands, and I collected all but $33 50— which sum, as it could not be collected, on application to the Town Council, I was RELEASED from.— This is a true statement of this account— which I am willing and ready to prove at any time when called upon.
